Born five days apart in June 1920 in Manhattan, Abraham Jay Ozer (born Abraham Ozersky) and Ruth Sydell Ozer (born Ruth Sydell Newman) married in 1947 after Abe returned from his army service in Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines. Abe received the Purple Heart after being wounded by shrapnel from a kamikaze attack on his ship after the Battle of Leyte Gulf in 1944. Returning to New York, Abe and Ruth began their romance, after being friends earlier as part of a Workmen Circle teen group, and lived almost the entirety of the rest of their lives in the Amalgamated Housing Cooperative in the Bronx, the country's oldest nonprofit housing cooperative. The Ozers were involved in the social, cultural, and financial community of the cooperative, originally founded by Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union members, and decidedly Jewish and progressive in its early decades. Working for RKO Pictures Inc. and as a substitute teacher, Ruth also volunteered at the local Amalgamated nursery school, which her daughters Alison and Stephanie attended as children. Self-employed in the insurance business, Abe served on several of the community's boards and societies, and later volunteered as a dispatcher for ambulances in the Amalgamated, and as a tour guide at the Bronx Zoo. The two were also able to pursue their passion for travel, beginning their adventures in 1969 with a trip to the United Kingdom. Over the next thirty-five years they would take more than fifty international and national trips.

The Ozer Family Papers primarily document the lives of Abe and Ruth Ozer, including their high school and college years, their correspondence and other records from Abe's military service in the 311th and then 168th Ordnance Depot Company, additional war correspondence between Ruth and other parties, and extensive documentation of the couple's many years of travel, including selected slides, photographs, travel planning documents, and Ruth's detailed travel journals for each trip from 1969 through 2005. Additional materials cover the Amalgamated Housing Cooperative, RKO Pictures Inc., and other aspects of the Ozer's lives, including numerous oral history interviews and home movies on formats ranging from 8mm film to digital. The greater Ozer family is also represented, from a family tree back to Abe's grandparents from Belorussia, to content and interviews with his mother, Sadie Uretsky, and several folders of clippings about Abe's brother, Bernard Ozer, an important figure in fashion, and former vice-president of Associated Merchandising Corporation. Additional content on the Ozer's children, grandchildren, and extended family rounds out the collection.

Background on Ozer Family

Both children of Jewish Eastern European immigrants, and born five days apart in the same Manhattan hospital in June 1920, Abraham Jay Ozer (born Abraham Ozersky) and Ruth Sydell Ozer (born Ruth Sydell Newman) married in 1947 after Abe returned from his Army service in Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines. Abe served in the 311th and then 168th Ordnance Depot Company during World War II, and received the Purple Heart after being wounded by shrapnel from a kamikaze attack on his ship, while anchored off the coast of the Philippine island of Leyte following the Battle of Leyte Gulf in 1944. Returning to New York, Abe and Ruth began their romance, after being friends before the war as part of a teen group of Workmen's Circle, a progressive Jewish community group. They lived almost the entirety of the rest of their lives in the Amalgamated Housing Cooperative in the Bronx, the country's oldest nonprofit housing cooperative.

The Ozers were involved in the social, cultural, and financial community of the cooperative, originally founded by Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union members, and decidedly Jewish and progressive in its early decades. Working as a press agent for RKO Pictures Inc., and as a substitute teacher at Walton High School, Ruth also volunteered at the local Amalgamated nursery school, which her daughters Alison and Stephanie attended as children. Self-employed in the insurance business, Abe served on several of the community's boards and societies, and after early retirement volunteered as a dispatcher for ambulances in the Amalgamated, and as a tour guide at the Bronx Zoo.

The Ozers were also able to pursue their passion for travel, after being unable to take the intercontinental honeymoon of their dreams (making it only as far as Montreal), and having other commitments earlier in their lives. The couple finally began their travel adventures in 1969 with a trip to the United Kingdom. Over the next thirty-five years they would take more than fifty international and national trips, with Ruth writing as early as 1982,

"We've roamed the globe. Europe, Eastern Europe and Russia, Central Asia, North Africa, the near East. We've visited ancient historic capitals, modern picturesque cities, jet-set resorts and spas and thousands of slides recall the sights, the sounds and encounters of our travels there."

The stories of the greater Ozer family provide the context around those of Abe and Ruth. These figures include Abe's parents Sadie Uretsky and Hyman Ozersky, and their families in Belorussia; Abe's brother Bernard Ozer, an important figure in fashion forecasting and purchasing, and former vice-president of Associated Merchandising Corporation; Ruth's parents Lou and Mollie Newman; and Abe and Ruth's daughters, Alison, born in 1953, and Stephanie, born in 1956, as well as their children and families.

Scope of collection

The Ozer Family Papers are divided into two series: Family, and Travel. Family materials primarily document the lives of Abe and Ruth Ozer, including their high school and college years, their correspondence and other records from Abe's military service, and additional war correspondence between Ruth and other parties. For chronological reasons, Abraham's surname post-change, Ozer, is used on all folders. The Travel series contains extensive documentation of the couple's many years of travel, including selected slides, photographs, travel planning documents and memorabilia, and Ruth's detailed travel journals for each trip from 1969 through 2005. Additional materials cover the Amalgamated Housing Cooperative, RKO Pictures Inc., and other aspects of the Ozer's lives, including numerous oral history interviews, photo albums, and home movies on formats ranging from 8mm film to digital. Ozer family materials include a large family tree tracing the family and photographs back to Abe's grandparents from Belorussia, to content and interviews with Abe's mother, Sadie Uretsky, and several folders of clippings and mixed materials about Abe's brother, Bernard Ozer. Additional content on the Ozer's children, grandchildren, and extended family rounds out the collection.

The collection also includes a Mansfield Model 950 8mm Editor, and a DeJur 8mm Model 750 Movie Projector with original case.

Series descriptions

Series 1. Family

1915-2015 (*bulk*1937-1995)

6 boxes (8.5 linear feet)

This series contains diverse family documents, ranging from biographical materials, correspondence, photographs, and audiovisual materials to collected certificates, books, and other memorabilia.

World War II and Abe's service are well documented, including his military desk nameplate, his frequent correspondence with Ruth, photographs, and military newsletters, which include Special Orders Extracts and Service Center newsletters and periodicals. An army scrapbook contains memorabilia and numerous photographs, covering his time in Wadesboro, NC; Fort Rucker, AL; Brisbane and Coolangatta, Australia; Manila, and Leyte, Philippines; and San Francisco, CA during and following the war. The collection also includes a military crewmen's helmet, probably from a later period, as well as small clutch of correspondence and memorabilia sent to Ruth by a different potential suitor, Milton Marcus, while he served in Europe during World War II, including postcards, various foreign and wartime currencies, and a Nazi armband on which is written "Cologne, July 4 1945."

Biographical materials are available for Abe, Ruth, and other family members, including his parents Sadie and Hyman. Of note is the fact that Sadie Ozersky's 1932 Certificate of Citizenship contains a field "Race: Hebrew" while Hyman's 1938 Certificate does not contain this field. Other documents reveal Abe and Ruth as young adults while in school, and later in their jobs and with family. In addition to Abe's army scrapbook, the collection contains a family photo album, a small box of assorted slides of the family, a portrait of Mollie Oretsky, several published books on community organizations, and multiple larger format photographs, certificates, and diplomas. Three envelopes contain keychain photo viewers, most with photographs of Abe and Ruth at formal events. The Ozer family is also self-documented via assorted audiovisual materials of home movies and family oral histories, including multiple 8mm reels, VHS cassettes, a box of assorted slides, mini digital videocassettes, one DVD, and several audiocassettes.

Series 2. Travel

1969-2005

Abe and Ruth Ozer in Virginia, 1951

2 boxes (2 linear feet)

The materials in this series are arranged chronologically within three parts: travel documents and memorabilia, slides, and travel journals. The documents and memorabilia contain various items kept from Ruth and Abe's travels, including itineraries, maps, daily cruise programs, and industry packets. The couple took extensive photographic documentation of their travels, and the slides and slide inventories in the collection represent a sampling from their over thirty years of travel, although there are some slides that do not seem to match the inventories and lists taken from the original slide carousels. The travel journals are small notebooks of thoughts and daily notes kept by Ruth for each trip.
