Read collection overview

Yolande Du Bois Williams Irvin, the only grandchild of American sociologist and historian W. E. B. Du Bois, was introduced to social thought at an early age, devoting her career to being an educator and avid supporter of civil rights. Her specific area of interest was youth mental health, especially that of teenage girls. She studied psychology in university and worked with various organizations to promote mental health causes. Following in her grandfather's footsteps, she delivered lectures across the United States regarding African American history, civil rights, feminism, and W. E. B. Du Bois's work, retaining a consistent connection to her family and the similarities in academic values that they held. The collection reveals the daily life of the family, including education, careers, and personal everyday life, both in context of and as separate as relatives of Du Bois. Other members of the Du Bois family in the collection include Yolande Du Bois Williams Irvin's mother (Nina Yolande Du Bois), husband (Arthur McFarlane I), son (Arthur McFarlane II), economic confidant (Gloria Peress), and close contacts Janette Trout and Melissa Williams. Materials largely stem from her graduate education, as well as professional and educational experience.

Background on Du Bois Family Collection

The Du Bois Family Collection encompasses the family of W. E. B. Du Bois, primarily his granddaughter Yolande Du Bois Williams Irvin, herself an educator and proponent of civil rights. Focusing more on daily life, the collection outlines the family's education, careers, and personal lives both in context of and as separate as relatives of W. E. B. Du Bois.

Born in 1932 to Nina Yolande Du Bois and Arnette Williams, Yolande Du Bois Williams was introduced to social thought at an early age. Her childhood was spent in various cities, including Harlem, New York; Gill, Massachusetts; and Baltimore, Maryland. The only grandchild of W. E. B. Du Bois, she spent considerable time with him and frequently attended conferences throughout her youth. One particular conference she attended, the International Youth Conference in Germany, served as an inspiration for her to pursue education as a career and emphasized the importance of travel in understanding the world.

Throughout her time at university, she worked to promote children's mental health, particularly teenage girls. Du Bois studied psychology at Fisk University in Tennessee before transferring to New York University, earning her bachelors. She obtained both her Masters and Ph.D. in psychology at University of Colorado, Boulder. As part of her work, she was involved with and held office in organizations such as Corpus Christi YWCA, Nueces County Mental Health Center, Coastal Bend Governmental Organizations, Mary McLeod Bethune Day Nursery Center, and Dos Mundos, among other institutions. She also held office in organizations dedicated to mental health. Her first "real-world" experience teaching came as being a teaching assistant for psychology courses at the University of Colorado. In 1988 she moved to Xavier University in Louisiana, becoming faculty of the school's psychology department. She was awarded the "Best Teacher Award" in 1989, just one year after beginning her career.

Along with teaching, Du Bois was a frequent orator, delivering lectures across the United States regarding African American history, civil rights, feminism, and the work of her grandfather. In 1993 and 2000, she participated in David Levering Lewis's Pulitzer Prize-winning biography of W. E. B. Du Bois through interviews. Other documentaries and biographies have also featured her, emphasizing her connection with her grandfather and the similarities in academic values that they each held.

Du Bois continued to work at Xavier University until 2005, when Hurricane Katrina sparked her move to Colorado, where she remained until her passing in 2021 at age 89. She had five children (Nina Carol Irvin, Arthur Edward McFarlane, II, Mark Adam Peck, Jeffrey Alan Peck, Sr., and Andre' Peck), six grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren at her time of death.

Scope of collection

The collection is divided into five series (correspondence, writings, personal and professional, publications, and photographs), largely from her time earning her graduate degrees. Both her educational and professional experience are seen from this time. Focusing on Yolande Du Bois Williams Irvin, the collection also includes her mother (Nina Du Bois Williams), husband (Arthur McFarlane I), son (Arthur McFarlane II), economic confidant (Gloria Peress), and close contacts Janette Trout and Melissa Williams.

Series descriptions

Series 1. Correspondence

This series includes correspondence from the 1970s as Du Bois prepared for her Master's and doctorate degrees. Items include discussions with nonprofit and group organizations, personal letters to family and friends, and memos from her work as a psychologist and as officer of various groups.

Series 2. Writings

This series offers a glimpse into Du Bois' life as she prepared for university, both in professional and personal writings. Included are her class notes, preparations for lectures, organizational lists, and artifacts from her daily life.

Series 3. Personal and Professional

This series includes items that relate to Du Bois' personal and professional life outside of correspondence and writings. Professional and academic items include class notes, exams, and documents relating to courses that she taught while at the University of Colorado, Boulder.

Personal items include financial records in the form of loans, receipts, and paychecks, as well as various belongings that she kept close throughout her moves across the nation.

Series 4. Publications

This series contains the publications that Du Bois collected, both as assigned coursework while at university and works from groups that she participated in. Readings that provided inspiration and intellectual significance for her are depicted, outlining her educational pursuits and the topics that she found both of interest and importance.

Series 5. Photographs

This series includes photos ranging from the late 1800s to present day. The majority of photographs feature members of the Du Bois family, including W. E. B. Du Bois and his first wife, Nina; their son, Burghardt, and daughter, Yolande Du Bois; Du Bois Williams, from childhood to adulthood; and her children, Arthur Edward MacFarlane II, as well as his children. Included in this series are a number of late 19th and early 20th century studio portraits.
