Read collection overview

Actress, producer/director, theater company founder, teacher, activist, avid gardener, and devoted family-member, colleague and friend, Catharine Sargent Huntington was born in Ashfield, Massachusetts on December 29, 1887. She attended Radcliffe College, graduating in 1911, and taught English and Theater at The Westover School in Middlebury, Connecticut from 1911 to approximately 1917. By the end of 1918 she had begun her theater career in earnest, working as a dramatic coach in the Boston area. In January 1919, she became the Radcliffe College representative to the Wellesley unit of the Y.M.C.A., working in France on war reconstruction before returning to Massachusetts to continue her work with the theater, particularly experimental theater, which was to endure for the next 60-plus years through her patronage, and her many performances, productions, and theater companies.

Spanning as it does almost a century from the late 1800s to the late 1900s, this collection captures Catherine Sargent Huntington's many interests, professional and personal activities and connections, and close family relationships, through more than 2,300 pieces of personal and business correspondence; photographs; photographic negatives; theater programs; scripts; original manuscripts of her poems, speeches, stage notes, and theater production scenarios; newspapers and newspaper clippings; estate and will information; organizational documents of the many organizations she helped direct; personal financial documents; and other printed material and items of ephemera.

Background on Catherine Sargent Huntington

Actress, producer/director, theater company founder, teacher, activist, avid gardener, and devoted family-member, colleague and friend, Catharine Sargent Huntington was born in Ashfield, Massachusetts on December 29, 1887. She was the only daughter of Rev. George Putnam Huntington and Lilly St. Agnan Barrett Huntington to survive infancy, presaging the core of strength and independence that would drive her throughout her long life. She grew up in Hanover, New Hampshire with 5 brothers – 4 older: Henry Barrett, Constant Davis, James Lincoln, M. Paul St. Agnan; and 1 younger: Frederic Dane. She remained close with each of them throughout their lives, and with their progeny for her entire life. She never married.

From 1904 through 1906, Catharine lived in Roxbury, Boston, Massachusetts with her aunt Kate Sumner while attending Miss Haskell's School in Boston, graduating in 1906. She spent 1906 to 1907 living in London, England with her brother Constant and his wife Gladys, traveling with them around the United Kingdom and Europe. She returned to Massachusetts to attend Radcliffe College, from which she graduated cum laude in 1911. She taught English and Theater at The Westover School in Middlebury, Connecticut from 1911 to c.1917. By the end of 1918 she had begun her theater career in earnest, working as a dramatic coach in the Boston area. In January 1919, following preliminary training through the American Red Cross, she became the Radcliffe College representative to the Wellesley unit of the Y.M.C.A., working in France on war reconstruction with the American Expeditionary Forces, the Réconstruction Aisne Dévastée, and the Union des Femmes de France. Around this time, she also appeared in a theater production under the direction of artist Joseph Lindon Smith on the French Riviera, and directed and produced a pageant put on by and for French village children around Saint-Quentin, France.

Upon her return to Massachusetts in December 1919, Catharine continued to develop her profound engagement with the theater, particularly experimental theater, which was to endure for the next 60-plus years through her patronage, and her many performances, productions, and theater companies. Some of her professional highlights: In 1922, she co-founded the Boston Stage Society and directed her first production in Boston, a play (probably "Uncle Vanya") by Anton Chekhov. Starting in 1927, she coached a group of black playwrights/artists looking to produce original plays through the Allied Arts Centre. In the 1930s, she mounted puppet productions with Mr. Punch's Workshop of Boston and The Puppet Theatre. In 1938, together with Edwin Pette and Virginia Thoms LePeer, she founded the New England Repertory Theatre Company, which performed in Boston during the winter season, and in Provincetown, Massachusetts during the summer season where it became known as the Provincetown Playhouse. Catharine owned the Playhouse building from 1940 to 1973. In 1966, the Provincetown Playhouse mounted its O'Neill Festival, performing 10 plays by Eugene O'Neill, a close friend of Catharine's. In 1977, the Playhouse and its library were destroyed by fire. They were eventually rebuilt through a massive fundraising effort by Catharine and others, according to plans created through a design competition conducted by a committee overseen by renowned architect I.M. Pei. Catharine also founded the Poet's Theatre, which was very active in Cambridge, Massachusetts in the 1950s and 1960s, and was associated with many other theaters throughout her life including the Brattle Theatre, the Peabody Playhouse, the Tributary Theater, the Proposition Workshop, and the Joy Street Theatre.

In 1966, Catharine received the Rodgers and Hammerstein Award for outstanding contributions to American Theater in the Boston area. She was similarly honored by the New England Theater Association and the Radcliffe College Alumnae Association. In 1984, Mayor Raymond Flynn and the Boston City Council declared March 28 to be Catharine S. Huntington Day, in recognition of "a life that has nourished and inspired generations of theatre artists"; and on December 29, 1984, her 97th birthday, Catharine received a citation from Governor Michael Dukakis and the Massachusetts State Legislature, commending her for her contributions to the American theater.

Throughout her life, Catharine devoted much of her prodigious energy to activism in connection with progressive politics, human rights, and issues of justice and equality before the law. In August 1927, as an active supporter of Nikola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Catharine – together with Edna St. Vincent Millay, Powers Hapgood, John Dos Passos, and other writers, poets, and artists – was among the 156 people arrested for participating in a demonstration outside the Massachusetts State House to protest Sacco's and Vanzetti's death sentences, which has come to be called the "Death Watch." Additionally, she served for decades on the Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Committee, assisting in the early efforts to have a memorial sculpture dedicated to the pair erected somewhere in Boston, for which she was recognized by Governor Michael Dukakis in 1977.

From the 1920s through the 1970s, Catharine lived at 66 Pinckney St., Boston (a much beloved family home that passed through generations of the Huntington Family), cultivating her love of gardening and her connections to family and friends, and writing poems, plays, speeches, and many, many letters to all her wide and varied circle of correspondents. Her garden at 66 Pinkney St. was featured in "Hidden Gardens of Beacon Hill" published by the Beacon Hill Garden Club in 1972. She was also notably active, together with her brother James Lincoln Huntington, in the formation and perpetuation of the Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation, Inc. in Hadley, Massachusetts, which has overseen the preservation of "Forty Acres" – the family homestead in Hadley – and the Porter-Phelps-Huntington House Museum and grounds since 1955. Catharine frequently visited Forty Acres during her life: first as a child to see various family members; then to visit her mother Lilly, who spent her final summers there until she died in 1926; and in later years, to stay with James, its owner from 1929 to 1955 until he donated it to the Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation. On every visit, Catherine brought her love for her family and her expertise and enthusiasm for developing and maintaining its gardens. In the early 1980s, due to declining health Catharine moved to Sherrill House in Boston, living there until her death on February 27, 1987. She is buried in the Huntington Family plot in the Old Hadley Cemetery, Hadley, Massachusetts

Scope of collection

Catharine Sargent Huntington's path through life was extraordinary for the breadth and depth of experience she packed into her 99 years. She was an actress, producer, director, theater company founder, frequent theater attendee, teacher, activist, avid gardener, much beloved friend and theater colleague, and devoted member/representative of the expansive Porter-Phelps-Huntington Family circle. The scope of her interests was similarly expansive including literature and poetry, justice and equality before the law, experimental theater, contemporary art, instructing young people and emerging artists/performers, gardening, and keeping herself apprised of the activities of her widely dispersed family. She was profoundly engaged with each experience she had and gathered people to her whatever she did.

Spanning as it does almost a century from the late 1800s to the late 1900s, at every stage her personal history acts as a bellwether of events in the same period of American history, a time that was characterized by enormous cultural, political, and social change. This collection captures that predictive quality, as well as illuminating all her many interests, professional and personal activities and connections, and close family relationships, through more than 2,300 pieces of personal and business correspondence; photographs; photographic negatives; theater programs; scripts; original manuscripts of her poems, speeches, stage notes, and theater production scenarios; newspapers and newspaper clippings; estate and will information; organizational documents of the many organizations she helped direct; personal financial documents; and other printed material and items of ephemera.

Series descriptions

Series 1. Correspondence

1900-1984

Throughout her life, Catharine Sargent Huntington cultivated profound connections to multiple generations of the extended Huntington Family; to every person she worked with professionally; to friends made in childhood through her eighties, from around the globe; and to organizations aligning with her interests in theater, art and music, literature and poetry, gardening, and justice and equality before the law. This series documents her vast and vigorous network of connections through more than 2,300 pieces of correspondence – many of which are addressed to "Dearest Catharine" – organized alphabetically by the name of Catharine's correspondent. Of particular note are numerous letters to Catharine from and about newspaperman/poet Creighton Hill, who served with Catharine on the Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Committee, and the Creighton Hill Memorial Fund. Also, a large number of letters relating to the Provincetown Playhouse; calling cards from her 1906-1907 stay in London, England; letters from many family members and life-long friends, covering the period from c.1904 to 1979; a letter dated July 20, 1977, from Governor Michael Dukakis acknowledging Catharine's work in support of the Sacco and Vanzetti Proclamation (issued August 23, 1977); and a letter dated March 28, 1984, from Mayor Raymond Flynn and the Boston City Council regarding the establishment of Catharine S. Huntington Day.

Additional correspondence is located in Series 2: Personal-Financial and -Legal; and in Series 4: Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation, Inc.

Series 2. Personal

1872-2003

The material in this series illuminates the bellwether life Catharine led. This series contains a wide variety of documents (including those related to her education and religious life, finances, legal advice, organizations she was involved with, handwritten notes, and manuscripts), printed material connected to her many interests (including magazines, book excerpts, event notices and programs, and invitations), newspapers and newspaper clippings, and background information in various formats concerning individual friends, family members, and Catharine, herself. Of particular note are Catharine's datebooks from 1933, 1947, and most years from 1953 to 1979; a lock of Catharine's hair; a draft manuscript written by Catharine entitled "Are Women Suited to Marriage?"; estate planning correspondence and documentation for Catharine and a few other family members; a variety of materials connected to Catharine's service in France with the Y.M.C.A. in 1919; and materials generated following her death relating to memorials and her obituary.

Series 3. Professional

1914-1984

Catharine had an extraordinarily long, productive, and varied career in the theater, spanning 60-plus years from the mid-1910s to the late-1970s. This series documents many of her performances, as well as her involvement in theater organizations and companies, and with theater colleagues who became close friends, through a wide variety of documents (including organizational documents relating to theater companies Catharine participated in, manuscripts, handwritten notes, and scripts with stage notes), printed materials (including programs, notices, and publications related to Catharine's theater involvement), and newspaper clippings. Of particular note are numerous scripts, dated 1914 to 1975, many with Catharine's handwritten stage notes; an executed contract dated March 4, 1954 for Catharine's appearance in "Folk Songs" – a film, and the film's script with Catharine's performance notes; and newspaper clippings regarding the Boston Stage Society opening on Joy St. (October 1923), various Works Progress Administration theaters (c. 1940), the Provincetown Playhouse rebuild (late 1970s), and feature articles about Catharine (1930-1984).

Series 4. Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation, Inc

1847-1980

This series contains correspondence, a variety of documents, and printed materials concentrating on the establishment and preservation of Forty Acres/the Porter-Phelps-Huntington House Museum as an historic property of national interest, and the incorporation of the Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation, Inc. to oversee that effort, all of which was spearheaded by Catharine's brother James Lincoln Huntington, with substantial assistance from Catharine and other Huntington Family members. Of special note are a letter from Frederic Dan Huntington (Catharine's grandfather) to John Sargent dated November 29, 1847; and correspondence and printed materials from before the incorporation of the Porter-Phelps-Huntington Foundation regarding the maintenance and preservation of Forty Acres/the Porter-Phelps-Huntington House.

Series 5. Photographs and negatives

1890-1972

This series contains many photographs and a smaller number of photographic negatives covering 82 of Catharine's 99 years. It catalogues Catharine's career in the theater, from 1921 to 1972, as well as her great love for her family and friends, her home and garden, and her cats. Noteworthy subjects include: Catharine's friend Dorothy Coit at 1 year of age (1890); an album bordered with watercolor flowers, containing photos of Catharine and her brothers (c.1895); Catharine's graduation from Radcliffe College (1911); Catharine at The Westover School (c. 1911); Catharine and her mother Lilly in a garden in Lexington, Massachusetts (c.1915); Catharine's service in France with the Y.M.C.A.; the Porter-Phelps-Huntington House and 66 Pinckney St., their gardens, visitors, and residents through the years; one of Catharine's earliest public performances, "The Jewel Merchant" in 1921; "Uncle Vanya" with the Boston Stage Society; and many productions at the Provincetown Playhouse through the 1972 season.
