

Special Collections and University Archives

UMass Amherst Libraries

Oldham Camp Records

1876-1927

1 vol., 27p. (0.1 linear feet)

Call no.: MS 569 bd

About SCUA

SCUA home

Credo digital

Scope

Admin info

Download

xml version

print version \(pdf\)

Read collection overview

The abundant waterfowl at Oldham Pond, Plymouth County, Mass., has long been a lure for hunters. During the nineteenth century, both hunting and recreational shooting of geese and ducks grew in scope throughout the Commonwealth, with the development of at least two formal hunting camps at Oldham.

The Oldham Camp records contains a detailed tally of waterfowl shot at Oldham Pond, along with an "Ancient history of Oldham Pond" by Otis Foster, 1906, chronicling changes in hunting practices and the advent of blinds and decoys. These records include annual summaries of geese taken at the camp (1876-1895) and summaries of both geese and ducks (1896-1919). More valuable are detailed records of "daily bags," 1905-1915, providing daily kill totals for each species (primarily ducks). An addendum by Edgar Jocelyn, 1927, provides additional historical detail on the hunting stands at Oldham Pond and changes in methods of attracting ducks. There are, as well, narrative annual summaries of the hunting seasons, 1905-1908 and 1912. Tipped into the front of the volume is a typed letter from the renowned Cope Cod decoy maker A. Elmer Crowell (1852-1951), July 2, 1926, reminiscing about hunting at Wenham Lake and promising to begin work on the decoys.

See similar SCUA collections:

Conservationism

Environment

Massachusetts (East)

Ornithology

Background on Oldham Camp

The abundant waterfowl at Oldham Pond, Plymouth County, Mass., has long been a lure for hunters. During the nineteenth century, both hunting and recreational shooting of geese and ducks grew in scope throughout the Commonwealth, with the development of at least two formal hunting camps at Oldham.

Scope of collection

The Oldham Camp records contains a detailed tally of waterfowl shot at Oldham Pond, along with an "Ancient history of Oldham Pond" by Otis Foster, 1906, chronicling changes in hunting practices and the advent of blinds and decoys. These records include annual summaries of geese taken at the camp (1876-1895) and summaries of both geese and ducks (1896-1919). More valuable are detailed records of "daily bags," 1905-1915, providing daily kill totals for each species (primarily ducks). An addendum by Edgar Jocelyn, 1927, provides additional historical detail on the hunting stands at Oldham Pond and changes in methods of attracting ducks. There are, as well, narrative annual summaries of the hunting seasons, 1905-1908 and 1912.

Tipped into the front of the volume is a typed letter from the renowned Cope Cod decoy maker A. Elmer Crowell (1852-1951) to John C. Phillips, July 2, 1926, reminiscing about hunting at Wenham Lake and promising to start work on the decoys.

Administrative information

Access

The collection is open for research.

Provenance

Acquired in July 2008.

Processing Information

Processed by Dexter Haven, July 2008.

Language:

English

Copyright and Use (More information)

Cite as: Oldham Pond Records (MS 569 bd). Special Collections and University Archives, University of Massachusetts Amherst Libraries.

Search terms

Subjects

Decoys (Hunting)--Massachusetts.

Ducks--Massachusetts.

Furnace Pond (Mass.)

Geese--Massachusetts.

Hunting--Massachusetts.

Oldham Pond (Mass.)

Contributors

Oldham Camp [main entry]

Foster, Otis.

Jocelyn, Edgar.

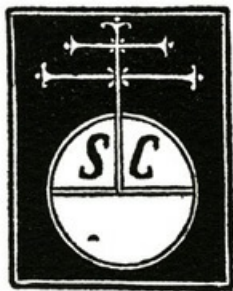

Link to similar SCUA collections

Conservationism

Environment

Massachusetts (East)

Ornithology

Special Collections & University Archives
University Libraries : UMass Amherst
154 Hicks Way : Amherst, Mass. 01003-9275
Ph. 413-545-7282 (545-SCUA)

2020Site PoliciesAccessibility